HOUSTON MARKET REVIEW

Houston, Tex., Sept. 16.—The heavy rains of a week have been a severe blow to the Texas cotton crop. The rains are reported general over the State and little cotton has escaped the beating down that resulted during the downpours. In many localities where the fields were white with the broken fluffy bolls they are as green as a hay field with the cotton hanging limp under the stalk or buried in the mud.

A season of warm dry weather and plenty of sunshine will rejuvenate a great part of the crop. Until then picking is at a standstill, gins are not turning a wheel, and the great machine of cotton production is standing idle until the weather clears.

Other States in the cotton belt have not suffered as Texas. Some have fallen in the eastern belt, they are described as beneficial.

Fall trade is opening over the country. This is helped by the weather occasioned by the spell, while money is easier with increasing movement of the crop. Anyway, the rains will be of aid to the late crops.

NOTICE.

All members of the Weaver Class are requested to meet at the Main Bros. office on Thursday evening, September 18, at 8 o'clock, for a social business.
